THE BRITISH VICTORY.
ENEMY'S LOSSES EXCEEDINGLY HEAVY.

London, Oct. 5.
Field-Marshal Sir Douglas Haig, in continuation of his report, says:—
The English, Australian and New Zealand Divisions delivered the assault. Among the English troops there were battalions from 28 counties, and also a few battalions from Scotland, Ireland and Wales.
Rapid progress was made at all points from the start. Only a short advance was intended, to the south of the Menin Road, where the objectives were reached at an early hour. The English battalions, to the north of the Road, carried, after sharp fighting, the hamlets of Polderhoek and Polderhoek Chateau, and also expelled the enemy from numerous farms and small woods; to the south and east of Polygon Wood.
The Australians captured Molenswatehoek and cleared houses on the Zonnebeke-Broodseinde Road. The New Zealanders took Gruvenstafel and the English, on their left, continued the line of advance and reached the outskirts of Poelcapelle.
The first objectives were gained, on the whole front of attack, shortly after the assault opened, and our advance against the final objectives was carried out in accordance with the plan and was equally successful.
The English took the villages of Rontel and Noordhoek and secured the high ground overlooking Becclehere. The Australians captured Broeselede and established themselves well over the crest of the Ridge, five miles to the east of Ypres, giving observation to the east of Poelcapelle church. The whole of the objectives were captured before midday.
The prisoners' statements and the identifications of German units, and the numbers of German dead show that the attack anticipated, by a few minutes, an attack by five German Divisions against our front, from Polygon Wood to Zonnebeke.
Our barrage descended on the enemy's assembling troops and his attack did not materialise. Our infantry overwhelmed those escaping from our artillery fire.
Owing to the enemy's losses in this area few counter-attacks have yet developed. Two were attempted, early in the afternoon, to the east of Gruvenstafel, and were broken to the north-east of Langemark led to the north-east of Langemark led to severe fighting but it failed to drive us out from the position gained.
Later in the afternoon there were three counter-attacks to the south-east of Polygon Wood, but they were unsuccessful.
The enemy's losses throughout the whole fighting were exceedingly heavy, which was largely owing to the unusual number of German troops on the battle front as the result of our attack.
Our casualties were light and we captured a few guns and much material.
Field-Marshal Sir Douglas Haig reports:—
The enemy heavily shelled the new position to the east of Ypres which our troops were engaged in occupying.
We drove off again to the north of Broeselede, and the enemy lost a number of tanks and armoured cars, and a few aircraft.

ENTHUSIASM IN GREAT BRITAIN.

London, Oct. 5.
Coming on the top of General Smuts' speech, Field-Marshal Sir Douglas Haig's victory in the battle of Broodseinde, as this third, and probably decisive, phase of the third battle at Ypres, will be known, it has kindled an enthusiasm in the country to an extent long unknown. The newspapers are lavish in their compliments to Sir Douglas Haig and his troops on the achievement which they anticipate will alter on the balance, the result of a year of fighting in the West, and will prove to be the turning point in the history of the war.
One expert puts the position very forcibly, saying: "The German giant has his head on the coast and his feet in Lille and Sir Douglas Haig has driven a salient into his stomach."
When the whole of the Paschendale Ridge, for which the struggle is now proceeding, is secured, the giant will be doubled up.
Paschendale Ridge is a formidable position with many little mines containing cunningly hidden guns, but the capture of the high positions from Tower Hamlets to Polygon Wood, threatens to outflank it.
Supplementary details of the fighting show that the British attack was so unexpected and shattering that the Germans ran, or were captured in blocks, almost without fighting. The advancing British found the bewildered Prussians crowding in shallow trenches and shouldered together, with bayonets fixed for attack. Their officers and non-commissioned officers, paralyzed by the crushing barrage, handed over their revolvers and ordered the men to lay down their arms. In cases where a rally was attempted after the first panic, they were broken in with bombs and bayonets.
The fighting was more open than previously and the spell of the pill boxes was obviously broken, the Germans, fearing these concrete blockhouses as death traps. The ground was generally fairly easy to cross except the marshy valley at Strombeek, on the British left, where the tanks were most useful in assisting in the capture of a number of strong points.
The Prussian Guards predominated among the prisoners.

DETAILS OF THE BATTLE.

London, Oct. 5.
Reuter's Correspondent at Headquarters, telegraphing this morning, says:—
The entire operation yesterday went like clock-work. In its salient features it was very similar to its recent predecessors in this region, but while the resistance of the German troops was probably less dogged on the whole, mainly owing to their prepared defences being fewer, the enemy's artillery fire was intense. Our troops experienced machine-gun fire during the advance, but the "pill-box" resistance seems to have been half-hearted, judging from the extensive jounding up of machine-guns in these places. While the German counter-attacks on a small scale were easily dealt with by our artillery, some swelled to formidable proportions, particularly in the neighbourhood of Heuffel, where between three and seven yesterday afternoon the Germans maintained a very heavy attack from the direction of Oosthoek, bringing up a continuous stream of reinforcements.

HONGKONG, SATURDAY, OCTOBER 6, 1917.

RUSSIA AND THE WAR.

THE news which comes from Russia is still most perplexing. Yesterday the Russian Press Bureau was telling us that the doubt expressed in the Allied Press regarding the possibility of Russia accomplishing her duty as an Ally is unjustifiable. It said the combative spirit was already manifesting itself on the northern front, leading to hope in the possibility of a complete regeneration of the Army in the future. To-day we get the news that the Democratic Conference has passed a resolution, by 338 votes to 106, instructing the Executive to constitute a strong Revolutionary authority which will actively work for a general peace. The method of attaining that end is not clearly indicated in the telegram, but we shall doubtless be able to assume that this Democratic Conference, by an overwhelming majority, expresses itself as being out of sympathy with the idea of reaching a general peace through victory. If that is the interpretation to be placed on this vote, then the prospect of seeing a united Russian army throwing itself on the enemy which is invading the territory of the new Republic would seem to be remote. But the news emanating from Russia is so contradictory and perplexing that the only thing the outer world can do is to "wait and see" what will happen. It must be as clear to the Russians as it is to everybody else that there is no prospect whatever of a general peace until Germany in words used by Mr. BALFOUR is made "powerless and free." Were the Russian army animated by the military spirit born of a patriotic desire to conserve the interests and the honour of Russia, a general peace would be made possible in six months, by the defeat and submission of the enemies of Democracy and Civilization—and there is no possibility whatever of securing a general peace at an earlier date by any other means. It is surely not without significance of the growing weakness of Germany that she has been able in the last four or five months to accomplish so little on the Russian Front where the Army has been so disheartened and the conditions of the country generally verging on political chaos. It must be humiliating to the Russian soldier, proud of his great military traditions, to read that the Central Alliance is everywhere being beaten and is retreating, except in Russia. In the face of the Russian assurance published yesterday and the announcement made to-day that an agreement has been reached for the establishment of a Coalition Government, in which apparently M. KERENSKY, the CHAIRMAN of Russia, will retain the leadership, we do not despair of seeing Russia again playing in this war the part the Allies look to her to play, to secure the permanence of the new political status of Russia and permanent peace throughout the world.

ENEMY'S CASUALTIES.

ESTIMATED AT 40,000 IN-A-FORTNIGHT.

LONDON, Oct. 5.

Reuter's Correspondent at Headquarters states that the fruits of yesterday's victory have been held. No infantry counter-attacks took place during the night, demonstrating the German exhaustion which is due to the manner in which their big offensive was devastated, yesterday morning, and our reception of the enemy's eight counter-attacks yesterday, five of these counter-attacks, made against a short front, on the Ypres-Menin Road, being broken up by our artillery. The remaining three were delivered against our new positions, near Reutel. Two of these were beaten back but the third advanced in great strength, late in the afternoon, bending back our line slightly, necessitating, however, only a trifling modification of our front, but this had absolutely no bearing upon the general tactical results achieved.

Within a fortnight we have struck the enemy, in Flanders, three staggering blows at a vital spot and have sent him reeling back about three miles, mostly up hill.

We have taken about 9,000 prisoners and inflicted casualties conservatively estimated at 40,000.

A better appreciation of these victories will be possible if we imagine what we should be thinking and saying if the situation were reversed and the enemy had succeeded in doing to us what we have done to him.

A notable feature of the fighting was the wonderful completeness of the arrangements for rapidly clearing the wounded. Despite the inclement weather, the stretcher bearing was practically finished early in the afternoon, as far as the open field was concerned.

Among the haul of prisoners is a larger percentage of mere boys than in any previous battle.

One regiment, from the Russian front, caused a panic by shouting that the English were upon them, and bolting.

THE KING'S CONGRATULATIONS.

LONDON, Oct. 5.

The King has telegraphed to Field-Marshal Sir Douglas Haig as follows:

"The continued success of my gallant troops in Flanders gives me the highest satisfaction and reflects great credit on your leadership and the efficiency, courage and endurance of all ranks."

THE GERMAN REPORT.

LONDON, Oct. 5.

The Wireless Press gives the following German official report:

The hottest points in yesterday's fighting were Belecappelle, isolated farms and the Passchaendele cross-roads eastward of Zonnebeke Wood, westward of Beclere, and the village of Gheluvelt.

The enemy temporarily advanced over this line, but was unable to hold the ground owing to our counter-attacks.

The English gain is restricted to a strip of from one to one and a half kilometres in depth between Poelcapelle and Beclere. We retain Beclere and Gheluvelt.

We repulsed, almost everywhere, the twelfth French attack in three days on Hill 344.

AN AIR-PILOT'S EXPERIENCE.

LONDON, Oct. 5.

The following report of a Squadron Commander in the Naval Air Service reveals that odds are cheerfully accepted by the British pilots during air raids on London.

The report states:—"I was flying at 11,000 feet and saw ten Gothas coming inland. I climbed to the enemy and engaged one, on the right, and fired 100 rounds into the tail of the machine, at 100 yards range, hitting the fuselage. The Gocha began a slow spin and I followed, firing in order to finish him off. My gun jammed and upon trying to clear it, I got into a flat nose spin. I then landed and got the gun-jamb cleared, ascended again and caught up with the Gocha. At 14,000 feet, I again engaged him from above and below, firing 200 rounds and silenced both guns of another Gocha. I finally ran out of ammunition."

EAST AFRICA.

PURSUING THE ENEMY.

LONDON, Oct. 5.

An official despatch from East Africa states:—"In the Moomkiny Valley, the enemy is retreating towards Magano. We are following him up."

THE RUSSO-RUMANIAN FRONT.

THE KOWLOON CUSTOMS TREATY.

THE DRAFT AGREEMENT.

We recently reproduced from the Peking Gazette a translation of a draft treaty between Great Britain and China, relating to the Kowloon Customs. The following paragraph in connection with the Treaty appears in the Peking Gazette of September 22nd:—"With reference to the article appearing in our last two issues giving a translation of a draft agreement between the Chinese and British governments relative to certain proposed Customs and other arrangements at Hongkong, we are requested to point out that our translation into English is from the Chinese text of an English version of an agreement which is still under discussion and has not reached finality. In view of the fact that negotiations are still proceeding, the publicity given by us to the draft agreement is regarded as premature. The translation made by us in any series of official documents will probably be found to differ materially from the text of the final agreement, when concluded. We need hardly add that the publication of the draft agreement was not supplied from any official source."

EARLIER TELEGRAMS.

THE BRITISH FRONT.

THE NEW ATTACK.

COMPLETELY SUCCESSFUL.

LONDON, Oct. 4.

Field-Marshal Sir Douglas Haig reports:—"Our attack over an eight mile front, from the southward of Tower Hamlets to the Ypres-Staden railway, northward of Langemark, was completely successful. All our objectives were gained and positions of great importance were won."

Over 3,000 prisoners have already been counted.

We are now in possession of the main ridge to a point 1,000 yards to the northward of Broodseinde.

The weather, after promising to be favourable, became less settled and a strong westerly wind with the force of a gale, and rainstorms, throughout the battle, added to the difficulties of the advance and the airmen's work. Nevertheless, the aircraft did valuable work and afforded useful information of the positions of our troops, and the assembly of the enemy for counter-attacks.

GERMAN REPORT.

LONDON, Oct. 4.

A German official report states:—"Today's great English attack penetrated only a kilometre deep, between Poelcapelle and Gheluvelt."

Bitter fighting continues to the eastward of Zonnebeke and westward of Beclere.

A GOOD DAY FOR THE BRITISH.

LONDON, Oct. 4.

Reuter's Correspondent at Headquarters states:—"The battle opened this morning with a fierce whirlwind of artillery barrage which swept on ahead of our men, the first waves of whom advanced to the fight in 'light' order so as to overtake the ground rapidly."

A wounded soldier who laid in a ditch during the last battles, said that both our and the German barages passed over him. He said there was no comparison between the intensity of the two barages.

Early reports arriving from the battle front are highly encouraging. The progress is excellent and prisoners are streaming into the collecting cages.

An attempted counter-attack at Broodseinde was promptly broken up.

The German artillery is shelling certain spots very heavily but "walking" wounded men report that our casualties are light.

Once again the day has gone well for the British.

ENEMY THOROUGHLY ALARMED.

LONDON, Oct. 4.

Reuter's Correspondent at Headquarters states the new and staggering blow in Flanders was launched this morning in unsettled weather which, however, favoured us and handicapped the enemy.

Today's battle is the foundation for a further grip on the great Menin Ridge system.

The enemy was, unquestionably, fully alive to the impending attack; the only points on which he was not sure were just when and exactly where the attack would come.

That the enemy is thoroughly alarmed at the development of the strategic menace to the whole of his right flank is sufficiently shown by the feverish haste with which he is hurrying up fresh troops and shuffling his reserves. Two Divisions have appeared from the Russian Front within the past few days.

The Germans are now being driven beyond the zone of their long prepared positions, with the result that they have to depend more upon men and less upon their protective works, to resist the advance.

As a consequence of this development of open warfare, the fighting is becoming cleaner, namely, there is more of the hand to hand element and less of chemical frightfulness.

A DISASTROUS DAY FOR GERMANY.

LONDON, Oct. 4.

Reuter's Special Correspondent at Headquarters states:—"Today is already being proclaimed as one of our greatest victories since the Battle of the Marne and it really seems that the battle which has rolled onward across the Menin ridges has gone brilliantly."

The Germans are scattered and shaken and prisoners are streaming back in hundreds. Many show no signs of the fighting, but there is a large proportion of wounded officers, all of whom are very depressed and agree that it has been a disastrous day for Germany.

Never have our troops fought more superbly, but another factor has contributed to the success. We forestalled a big projected attack, the object of which was the recovering of Zonnebeke Ridge. No less than five divisions had been brought into position for that purpose.

It is stated that their attack was fixed for seven o'clock. Ours was launched an hour earlier and was the enemy's undoing. Our terrible curtain fire swept over the assembled masses of German assaulting divisions, and the slaughter is described as the worst in the war.

Flesh and blood was unable to continue to face such an ordeal and when our attacking waves advanced the Germans, in many places, were already bolting like dazed rabbits.

The answer of our "walking" wounded, to the question as to whether they saw any bodies, is almost stereotyped. It is:—"Only their backs, unless they were wounded."

hundred yards handicapped their artillery as well as ours. It was an infantrymen's battle, more than any previous battle, since the British Army has assumed the offensive, with the rifle and machine gun as the principal weapons.

The British merely came into play at all fronts. Germans seldom allowed our lads to get to grips. Here and there they made a stout stand in their concrete works, but the crushing defeat of their own attack before it was launched seemed to have shaken them. Nearly all along the line and it is reported the Germans are withdrawing their guns.

We shall probably never hear the truth with regard to the German losses on this day, but it is certain that these run into many thousands. Our casualties are again, relatively, very light.

WEATHER IMPEDES AERIAL WORK.

LONDON, Oct. 4.

Field-Marshal Sir Douglas Haig reports:—"Low clouds and a high west wind, on Wednesday, made aerial work almost impossible."

Four machines attempted to bomb an enemy aerodrome. One bombed its objective and two bombed other targets. Few hostile aircraft were seen.

THE FRENCH FRONT.

VIOLENT ARTILLERY STRUGGLE.

LONDON, Oct. 4.

A French communiqué states:—"There were hand grenade and artillery actions on the plateau to the south of the Allies."

An enemy coup de main was repulsed to the west of Pompele.

There was a very violent artillery struggle, all day long, on the right bank of the Meuse.

An attack on our trenches to the North of Hill 344 was repulsed. Our artillery caught enemy assemblies on this region with its fire.

REVIEW OF THE BRITISH POSITION.

LOSSES AND GAINS SINCE JULY 31.

LONDON, Oct. 4.

General Maurice, Director of Military Operations on the General Staff, at the weekly review of the situation this afternoon, informed a representative of Reuter that he had just heard, telephonically, that Sir Douglas Haig had gained the whole of today's objectives, including a very important part of the Menin Ridge.

The advance was over a front of 1,600 yards and reached a maximum depth of 2,500 yards.

General Maurice gave the following figures in connection with the troops employed since July 31 up to date:—English, 70 per cent, Colonial, 10 per cent, Scottish, 8 per cent, Irish, 6 per cent.

The respective casualties for the same period were:—1 per cent, 8 per cent, 10 per cent, and 6 per cent, of the total. From the beginning of the year to September 30th, 61,435 German prisoners had been taken, and 332 heavy guns captured. Our total losses were 15,065 prisoners and no guns. During the same period, in all theatres of war, we had taken 72,513 prisoners and captured 470 guns. Our greatest air success was on the Somme front, when we swamped the Germans and we had taken the initiative ever since.

Since we first began bombing we have put in double the quantity the Germans have. We initiated everything in the air and the enemy is never able to interfere with our photography or artillery. We have concentrated on the main issues.

The importance of General Maude's victory at Ramadieh lies in the fact that it was at a point where the enemy might have made a flank attempt on Bagdad.

The Germans in East Africa have been driven into a much smaller area, and the enemy now only holds 250 x 50 miles of German East Africa.

AIR RAIDS ON GERMAN TOWNS.

THE GERMAN VIEW.

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 9.

According to German accounts, on the night of October 2nd, a dozen aeroplanes dropped a considerable quantity of bombs on Frankfurt, Stuttgart, and other towns.

Five people were injured and one killed. The damage, generally, was slight.

An official telegram states that the object of the French attacking operations so far from the front, and containing numerous hospitals, is not clear. Such barbarity will only strengthen the German determination to persevere.

H.M.S. DRAKE TORPEDDED.

LONDON, Oct. 4.

The Admiralty announces that the warship Drake, commanded by Captain Radcliffe, was torpedoed, on Tuesday, off the north coast of Ireland.

She reached harbour and then sank in shallow water.

The explosion killed one officer and eight men. The remainder of the crew were saved.

[H.M.S. Drake is an armoured cruiser of 14,000 tons built in 1902.]

AMERICAN SUBMARINE HUNTERS.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.

The construction of an immense flotilla of destroyers is progressing remarkably. Naval experts expect them to be ready for duty in European waters early in 1918.

The destroyers are a new class and the trials of the first few completed destroyers are being watched with intense interest.

THE DROP IN SILVER.

SHANGHAI VIEWS ON THE SUBJECT.

The "N. C. Daily News" of Friday last says:—

The explosive sounds that came from the vicinity of The Bund between nine and ten o'clock yesterday morning were not fore-runners of a revolutionary outbreak, they were caused by the crash made when exchange fell 3d and there was a great scurrying for shelter by that gabbled of Chinese speculators who frequent Kiang Road in the vicinity of the International and Russo-Asiatic banks.

Commenting on the probable future movement of silver or exchange is a foolish business best left to the imaginative minds of speculators who have all sorts of stories all their own, such as that the rate came down because tomorrow is Autumn Solstice Day and that it will rise again when the requirements of that day are filled. If any reader expects to find here a forecast of what rates will be to-day or next week, he should read no further, no such forecast is made. There are no fortune-tellers attached to the staff of this paper.

Bar silver had been rising steadily all the summer until it had reached the astounding figure of 42d. on September 8th, the T.T. rate on London was then 4/10d. Since September 8th, practically in daily advances, silver has risen steadily until 45d. was reached on Sept. 22nd and it stood at 30d. until yesterday. These quotations are for the London date of the previous day. All this time exchange stood at 4/10d, falling 4d. on September 20. Yesterday the banks' quotation from London reported the market quiet and dull at 34d.—a drop of 1d. in silver.

The changed price, published on the daily exchange slips circulated at 6.30 o'clock yesterday morning, started a panic among the speculators, who are just as prone to be panicky when exchange or silver is going up as they are when it is going down. The opening T.T. rate was 4/3, a penny lower than Wednesday's closing, the decline, perhaps, being due to sentimental causes connected with the fall of silver. The brokers and speculators who had been in a feverish state of expectancy for a fortnight, expected exchange would advance to keep up with silver, but buckled, developed weakness, and bought freely, sending the rate down to 47. There was a good demand all day and willingness to take any rates down to 1/2 below silver parity.

Considering the relative position between silver and local exchange, there seems no sound reason for the weak view taken by the Chinese yesterday, allowing themselves to become panicky. The price of silver has been forced up too quickly, under a legitimate demand but forced just the same, and it is natural there should be reaction. Silver is cheaper here than elsewhere, and if the price should decline to too low a level to be healthy there will be danger of losing Shanghai stocks by exportation. As it is, there is an outward movement, and it is desirable to keep silver here. As to why the exchange rate did not advance parallel with silver—it might have, if the export season had been open; but September is a dull month.

Apart from the nervous condition of the Chinese, there seems no sound reason why exchange should be so low, in view of the general outlook for silver and taking local conditions into consideration. The rate of exchange is well below the parity of silver; yet, on account of the drop of 1d. in London, which was to be expected after the forced rise, Chinese panicked and bought freely, sending rates down 2d. at once after the opening yesterday.

The China Press of Saturday says:—"The 34d. falling off in silver since the 22nd has produced a panic and a consequent belief among the money experts, however, that some one or more of the governments has begun cutting into its silver reserve. It was whispered that some of the local banking institutions might be preparing to convert their holdings of silver into gold."

The "United States" said a prominent local financier, "has 450 millions in its vaults, as security for silver dollar certificates, an amount equal to two years of the world's output of silver. It is there only as security for those notes and the government is quite conceivably may decide that it might as well, or better, replace that silver with gold."

Then, there is the Singapore reserve of which a few tons might be disposed of at a profit. These suppositions are a reasonable conclusion. When a government has plenty of silver bought at 42d. an ounce, it may well be reluctant to go out and purchase more at 35d. an ounce to supply what might be said to be only a war demand."

The drop in silver has had an immediate golden effect on the Shanghai Exchange and, yesterday, where formerly business was in a constant condition, there were buyers for everything apparently.

The steady drop in the past few days shows that the price has been knocked out from under in some way, said one big business man. "And while it is impossible to do any accurate forecasting about the future in Shanghai, it looks to me as though silver would go back slowly to something like its normal—in a way of speaking—basis."

A SAD AWAKENING.

The foreman of a construction gang was walking along his section of the railway one day when he came upon a labourer fast asleep in the shade of a fence. "Eying the man with a stern smile," he said:

"Sape on, ya idle spalpeen, sape on. So long as ye shape ye've got a job, but when ye wake up ye're out of work!"

IT NEVER FAILS.

GRAND HOTEL, 115, Old Chelsea and Riverside, formerly the old hotel, has been transformed into a grand and modern hotel, and the trials of the first few completed destroyers are being watched with intense interest.
